AMERICANS AHEAD.

Delegates to the Women's Council Lead All.

London Season Waning, and People Going to the Country.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Associated Press.]

LONDON, July 8.—A representative of the Associated Press has interviewed the Countess of Aberdeen and others regarding the practical results likely to accrue from the International Council of Women. Lady Aberdeen, who is an enthusiastic admirer of the American and Canadian delegates, said: "Every one of them was a skilled expert and most of them were trained speakers, whom the congress was delighted to hear, which cannot be said in regard to many of the others speakers. The Americans, as a rule, were better informed, more decided in opinion and further advanced in the leading topics than any of the other delegates. They fairly outstripped the English women, who, however, were better informed than the Continental delegates in general knowledge of the subjects pertaining to women. Mrs. S. E. Wall won the congress from the first. Her extraordinary tact in dealing with such a large gathering was remarkable. Miss Susan B. Anthony's powerful advocacy of women's claims distinctly added to her already great reputation.

"Regarding the results, the grand consummation has been reached of welding together a cosmopolitan body of thoughtful women, prepared to educate their fellow women. Twenty-five years hence the leaven of today will have leavened the whole world,' and the irresistible force of public opinion will have raised women to their proper sphere."

Miss Susan B. Anthony dwelt enthusiastically on the work of the council and said: "We have already taken the outer trenches of the world's thought."

Senator Mark Hanna says he regards former Congressman John De Witt Warner's denouncement of him and other prominent men before the Brooklyn Democratic Club, Tuesday night, as cabled here, as being due to disappointment. He adds that it "could only have gained the public ear by its extravagance," that when he speaks of "Hanna syndicates" he knows he "talks nonsense," while when he uses the names of General Eagan, Captain Carter and Secretary Alger to "discredit President McKinley" American good sense "simply swishes it aside as claptrap."

"Mr. Warner, however," the Senator continued, "strikes other ground in praising the Filipinos, and I greatly mistake my countrymen, if, when the time arrives, they don't both clear Congress of the kind of patriotism exemplified by Mr.

LOSS WILL REACH $10,000,000.

Two Hundred Square Miles of Texas Cotton Land Flooded.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—A special to the Republic from Caldwell, Texas, says: Estimates made by cotton buyers as to the loss resulting from damage to the cotton crop in the Brazos valley are that not less than 200 square miles of cotton-bearing land has been flooded. Basing the loss on five-cent figures, the crop destroyed on these plantations was worth almost $1,000,000. Well informed persons are of the opinion that this unprecedented rise in the Brazos has cost the people of Texas little less than $10,000,000.

MAY BE BOSTON EMBEZZLER.

Man Returning from the Klondike with Starving Gold Seekers.

BOSTON, July 8.—Chief Inspector William B. Watts of this city today sent a message to Chief of Police C. S. Reed of Seattle, Wash., asking the Seattle officer to be on the watch for Fred T. Moore, who in an Associated Press despatch recently was reported as having recently arrived at Arctic City, Klondike, with a party of starving gold seekers. Chief Watts thinks the man may be Fred T. Moore, formerly teller of the National Bank of Commerce of this city, who left here May 11, 1898, with $50,000 of the funds of the bank. There is a reward of $5,000 for Moore's arrest.

ALBERT SHERMAN DEAD.

PAWTUCKET, July 8.—Former State Senator Albert Sherman died at his home in Seekonk, near this city, early this morning, aged 61 years. He had been for several years a sufferer from heart trouble and had been seriously ill since Wednesday.

Mr. Sherman was born in Providence in 1838. He was master mechanic at the mill of the A. W. Sprague Manufacturing Company, Providence, for 15 years, after which he was selling agent for the Fales & Jenks Machine Company, and agent of the United States Cotton Company. He retired in 1888 and went abroad, since which time, until within three years, he had devoted his time to inventions. Two of his spindles are in general use and revolutionized the spinning industry.

Mr. Sherman was a Democrat and served as state senator from 1889 to 1891. He introduced and secured the enactment of laws which reduced railroad fares between this city and Providence and in other ways well represented this city.

New York Yellow Fever Patients Doing Well.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Dr. Doty, health officer of the port, gave out the following statement as to the yellow fever patients today: "Miss ClenCennin is greatly improved; her condition is all I could ask. Mr. Lackey's condition has not changed. He is very weak but his brain is clear; his condition could be no better under the circumstances. Twenty-four or 48 hours hours more will decide his case."

GAINED TWO MINUTES.

Columbia Beats Defender on the First Round.

Again Started Second, But Able to Take the Lead.

LARCHMONT, July 8.—The announcement of another trial race between the two big American sloops, Columbia and Defender, for a $250 cup offered by the Larchmont Yacht Club, proved a sufficient attraction to draw to this resort a host of eager yachtsmen.

Those who came last night, however, were considerably disappointed when they awoke this morning and found that more unsatisfactory conditions could not have been imagined than those of the early morning. There was no breeze and a thick fog hung over the Sound.

The regatta committee chose the usual course to be sailed by the boats. The committee at Mr. Iselin's request placed the starting line half a mile to the eastward and the easterly stake boat well out in the Sound off Stamford. The official course is therefore as follows:

Course No. 1—From starting line to and around red dory, with blue and white ball thereon, anchored in the middle of Long Island sound, distant eight nautical miles, course east ¾ north; leaving same on starboard hand. Thence to and around a white spar buoy, letter L in black printed thereon, in Hempstead harbor, off Prospect point, distant eight miles, course southwest by west; leaving same on starboard hand. Thence to and around the southwest stake boat, distant three miles, course north-northwest; leaving same on starboard hand, thence over and around the above course a second time to finish between the two stakeboats, leaving the southwest boat on the port hand. Course No. 2 is the reverse of No. 1.

The regatta committee had another meeting this forenoon, and at the request of Mr. Iselin changed the method of starting from the one-gun, as decided upon last night, to the regular New York Yacht Club start, of three guns.

By 10:30 the weather had cleared sufficiently to see the Long Island shore from the clubhouse. There was no wind, the surface of the Sound being as smooth as glass, but the committee seemed confident that a southwesterly breeze will come before noon. At 10:45 the regatta committee telephoned to C. Oliver Iselin that the start was postponed for one hour, until 12:30.

Both yachts swung lazily at their moorings until after the noon hour. Preparations for the day's work began on board the Columbia first. The sail covers were taken off and at 11 o'clock the huge mainsail slowly began to rise. At 11:10 work began on the Defender; the jib was sent up in stops first, and then up went the huge mainsail. Meantime the Columbia was sending up her jibtopsail. Especial care was noticeable in the setting of the Columbia's sails. Since Thursday battens have been put in the clubtopsails. A slight northeast breeze was blowing at noon, but it was very light indeed.

After a long wait the wind came out from the southwest, and at 12:10 both yachts slipped their moorings at the same time. Both came down toward the start under mainsail, clubtopsail and jib. At 12:20 the breeze had increased perceptibly and the boats crouched for the starting line. The fog still hung low on the water to the eastward but over on the Long Island shore it was quite clear. At 12:25 forestaysails were hoisted on both yachts. The wind increased to a good wholesail breeze, about west-southwest, and the yachts heeled well down as they reached across the bay.

The preparatory signal was given at 12:30 o'clock and it was announced that course No. 1, before the wind to the eastward, with a beat back from the Long Island buoy to Hempstead harbor buoy, would be sailed. Captain Rhodes had the Defender well in hand as he shot out from under the Columbia's bow, and timing the signal excellently crossed the line just 41 seconds after the whistle blew, 12:40:41. The start was a grand one for the Defender. The Columbia crossed 12 seconds after the Defender, at 12:40:53, both boats breaking out jibtopstails just before crossing. The two boats had a great luffing match right after the start, the Columbia getting the best of it.

The Columbia rounded the third mark at 2:10:30 and the Defender at 2:12:26. The boats then started on their second round of the course.

SHAMROCK UNDER SAIL.

Presented a Fine Sight on Her Canvas-Stretching Trip.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 8.—Cup challenger Shamrock quite unexpectedly left her moorings at 11:30 this morning and sailed down Southampton waters on a canvas-stretching trip. The Iverna also started with Sir Thomas Lipton on board, apparently with the intention of testing her speed against the Shamrock. The Meteor has arrived and is being docked and cleaned. Emperor William is expected to inspect the Shamrock before she sails for the United States. The challenger presented a very fine sight under sail. She went westward and is expected to be away until dark.

HARRIMAN FAR AHEAD.

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 8.—The struggle for the amateur golf championship of America between Findlay S. Douglass, the present champion, and Herbert M. Harriman of the Meadowbrook Club, Hempstead, L. I., took place today. The day was beautiful and an hour before the two experts commenced the morning's play the little stand near the first teeing ground was thronged with spectators. It was by far the largest crowd of the week that saw the beginning of the contest for the Havemeyer trophy and the championship gold medal, and by the time play commenced the number of spectators was so great that it was necessary to stretch ropes some distance in the rear of the players. Douglass was somewhat nervous before the start. He said that he expected to have a hard struggle to win the championship, but that he expected to win. Harriman also expressed himself as confident of winning.

At the end of the eighteenth hole Harriman was 8 up on Douglass.

At the end of the fourth hole Harriman was 3 up on Douglass.

TWO SKELETON REGIMENTS.

Desires of Volunteers in the Philippines as to Enlistment Learned.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—General Otis cables the following:

Manila, July 8.—Adjutant General, Washington:

Desires of all volunteers in Philippines ascertained. Two skeleton regiments fairly well assured. In two or three days will cable names of officers nominated for regiments so that appointments of lieutenants to recruit in the United States can be made.

THE AUSTRALIAN "SWAGMEN" AND "SUNDOWNERS."

There are a dozen trades in the bush whose followers go on foot from job to job, and are called "swagmen." Shearers, splitters and fencers, bush carpenters and the rest, are, as often as not, steady and capable, with a little freehold paddock and homestead somewhere down country, a wife, and a troop of young colonials. But the elderly swagman is of the genus tramp—a loafer and a vagabond, the subject of innumerable comic anecdotes, and the horror of thrifty station managers. As a practiced loafer, he goes by the name of "sundowner," and is so termed because his arrival at the homestead is nearly timed with the going down of the sun, when work upon the station is finished for the day. Along the trailing dusty track he comes in the twilight, unsavory, ragged, empty and well nigh worn out with fruitless search after that for which his weary heart is unhungered above all else—work, a job; and there is no employment mean enough the tells you wistfully to be beneath his humble craving. And yet night by night he asks, only to find that the ill luck which has dogged him all his days is still pursuing him. It always happens that the work in hand and offering on this particular station is, of all possible varieties, the single one with which his singularly wide experience has not made him familiar. If a boundary rider is wanted, he is a shepherd; if a shepherd, he has ridden boundaries for years; if wire fencing is going on, he is a post-and-rail hand; if the fencing is all wood, he understands only wire, and looks desolate.

Whenever it is possible, he comes prepared with his refusals and regrets. There is honor among sundowners; it is a point of etiquette between brother professionals that, meeting one another between stations, they exchange notes of their reception and of each station's needs. He is given his pint of flour, his bit of beef and pinch of tea; he is shown his night's camp, and told to clear out in the morning.

At times the plague of swagmen has become so acute, and such a drain upon the afflicted stations, that an attempt has been made to get rid of them by refusing rations and a night's camp. From such a contest the swagmen usually emerge victorious. In those vast, lonely areas station assets are easily levied upon; if a man takes upon himself to refuse the sundowners their self-arranged privileges, his fences will be mysteriously cut, his grass or his wool shed set alight, some out stations burned down, and his station property generally will develop suicidal mania.—[Harper's Magazine.

THE LARGEST STEAMSHIP.

Steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse is 649 feet (over all) in length, 66' feet beam, 14,000 tons and 28,000 horse-power. She holds the record for the shortest eastward passage across the ocean (New York, September 2d, 1897, to the Needles), made in five days, 15 hours, 10 minutes; her average speed from New York, July 5, 1898, was 22.51 knots, best on record. She has also made the fastest single day's run of 561 knots; but the Lucania was close on her heels with 562 knots. The Oceanic, now nearly ready for service, is larger than the Kaiser, being 704 feet in length, 17,040 tons and 30,000 estimated horse-power. The famous Great Eastern of 1860, a marvel of her time, was 692 feet (over all) in length and of great beam (83 feet), not being built on the "yachting lines" of the present day. With only 7,650 horse-power, her huge bulk was literally handicapped for speed; but for all that she made her maiden voyage in 11 days, 2 hours, 55 minutes (June 28, 1860), and the return in 10 days, a great feat for the times. It would hardly have been possible 40 years ago, with the machinery then in use, to put enough of it into the ship to give her the speed of modern flyers without sacrificing, to a great extent, her carrying capacity. Up to 1860 the only better record was that of the Baltic—the then famous American liner—in nine days, 13 hours, a "phenomenal record," as then classed. And this was from Liverpool to New York, a route several hundred miles longer than from the Needles. Of the American line (known as the "Collins") an officer of the British navy, after a passage on the Baltic, said: "I am only doing justice to those magnificent vessels to state that they are, beyond any competition, the finest, the fastest and the best sea boats in the world." Martin's "Century History of the Boston Stock and Money Markets," recently published, and from which these facts have been gathered, has an interesting record of fast "liners" from the Cunarder Britannia, in 1840, to the racers of 1898.

ATTACKS THE TRUSTS.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 7.—At the dollar dinner given by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Columbus in the Auditorium tonight fully 1,000 persons cheered and applauded Hon. William J. Bryan and other speakers. It was the largest banquet the local Democracy has had since that given in honor of the seventy-seventh birthday anniversary of the late Judge Allen G. Thurman, in the same hall, 10 years ago.

The affair was strictly Democratic in its simplicity, all classes being represented. The chief guest of course, was Colonel Bryan. At the table with him were seated Hon. C. T. Callahan and Hon. George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, Judge Tarvin of Kentucky, Hon. Allen G. Thurman of Columbus the toastmaster, and several others prominent in state politics.

Hon. Christopher T. Callahan of Massachusetts was the first speaker, responding to the toast, "The issues." He dwelt particularly upon imperialism, trusts and free silver as the leading issues in 1900.

Judge Tarvin of Kentucky responded to the toast, "Party and Principle."

Hon. George Fred Williams was the last speaker, his toast being "The Eastern Democrats."

When Colonel Bryan was introduced, there was an outburst of applause, which continued several minutes. He said, in part:

"I congratulate the club upon having declared in emphatic terms that there shall be no retreat from the position taken by the Democratic party in 1896. The Chicago platform applied Jeffersonian principles to the questions then before the country. Every plank in that platform was a Democratic plank and not one plank could be taken from the platform without injury to the party's chances of success. Sometimes we hear a suggestion that the silver plank should be dropped or amended, but, as a rule, those who threaten to get off the platform are really the persons who were never on the platform. Those who aided in the adoption of the Chicago platform are still true to its principles, and a multitude of those who are opposed to its adoption have been converted to it within the last three years.

"The money question is neither dead nor sleeping. Can the gold standard be regarded as satisfactory when a representative President sent a commission to Europe to secure aid in getting rid of it? Every argument made in favor of an international agreement is a condemnation of the gold standard. The failure of the commission to secure foreign aid in the restoration of bimetallism is conclusive proof that we must act alone if we expect relief from monometallism, while the refusal of our opponents to suggest any other ratio is evidence that 16 to 1 is the only ratio at which bimetallism is possible.

"The trust question is not a new one, and yet it has grown in interest and importance because the trusts have grown in number. Attorney General Griggs is reported as saying if anything is done to control the trusts, it must be done by the states. No one who has examined this subject will believe that state legislation is sufficient. The federal government must deal with the trust as soon as its pernicious influence extends beyond the limits of the state in which it is organized.

"The President, through his attorney-general, can enforce the law now in existence. If that law is not sufficient, he can recommend laws which are sufficient; if the constitution will not permit the extinguishment of trusts, he can recommend an amendment to the constitution, conferring upon the federal government ample power to enable the government to destroy the monopoly principle in industry.

"The Republican party, through its administration, could extinguish its trusts if it desired to do so. It is powerless to deal with the question, because it mortgaged itself to the trusts to obtain the money necessary to carry the last election. When the methods employed in the last election are understood, no one need wonder that the attorney general is undisturbed by the watering of stocks, the discharge of traveling men and the extortion practiced on the consumer."

The latter part of Mr. Bryan's speech was devoted to imperialism, with this conclusion:

"Let us give to the Filipinos the same assurance of independence that we have given to the Cubans. Let us assure them of our intention of establishing a stable government which, when established, will be their government, not ours. Let us assure them that we shall stand by them like an elder brother and say to other nations: 'Hands off!' Let this republic work out its destiny."

M'LEAN A CANDIDATE.

Would Accept the Democratic Nomination for Governor of Ohio.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—John R. McLean, proprietor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, who spends most of his time in Washington, where he has several million dollars invested, admitted today that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio. "If the Democrats of Ohio give me the nomination," he said, "and my friends ask me to take it, I will accept."

This is significant for two reasons, first, because it indicates that McLean expects to avail himself of the Hanna-Foraker fight to beat Hanna's candidate for governor as a stepping stone to McLean's larger ambition for the Senate and the Presidency, and, second, because McLean is opposed to Bryan's renomination and hopes to capture the Ohio delegation away from him next year.

Mr. McLean seems to have no doubt that he will be nominated for governor, although he may have to take a platform indorsing Bryan and the Chicago platform.

HARD FIGHTING.

Incursion of Persian Revolutionists's into Armenia.

[illegible] July 8. The Constantinople [illegible] of the Standard says: [illegible] Turkish Armenia, [illegible] of an armed band of [Arm]enians from Persia, [c]onflicts with the Kurds [illegible] accompanied by des[illegible] [illegible] persons have one system. Not only are old rivalries disposed of, but there is a new policy of actually cooperation.

[illegible] BILT RAIL-

Again appears the ambitious planning and the forceful execution of William K. Vanderbilt. As the recently rounded-out Boston & Albany deal was his, so is this that is bigger. Wall Street and all the railroad world marveled when they heard President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania was present at the Boston & Albany lease meeting of New York Central's directors. Current representation has had it that he was present as an incidental guest merely, though some far-fetched theories have suggested that he was really doing picket service for the Pennsylvania company, seeing to it that his corporation was not to be discriminated against—an idea too grotesque for consideration outside of Wall Street.

Mr. Cassatt sat with the board of the New York Central for the reason that practically he has become a member of that board. William K. Vanderbilt, through his direct shareholding representatives, is today the largest stockholder of the Pennsylvania railroad.

This fact has been but a little while known, even to the foremost financiers who have long held controlling influence in Pennsylvania affairs. The election of a successor to the late Frank Thomson brought it out with a clearness that really was unintended. According to well-recognized official precedent Vice President Green was entitled to succeed to the presidency, and so general was anticipation of that occurrence that Philadelphia despatches were agreed in naming him.

But precedent was put aside. The directors made a canvass along lines that were new—a canvass to which they were invited, having a chance to take cognizance of where Pennsylvania stock was held and by whom held. Mr. Cassatt was forthwith chosen, being the candidate of William Kissam Vanderbilt.

Not all a surprise, however, was the discovery of the big Vanderbilt holdings of Pennsylvania. Early last year President Thomson learned what the fact was; and even then there was official action which looked to recognition of changing intercorporation relations. What then was made clear was that while European holders of American securities for half a dozen years have been letting go, they found one continual steady buyer for the Pennsylvania shares, the same who was the foremost taker of New York Central—W. K. Vanderbilt.

Not for a passing speculation, not at haphazard, not without a well-defined policy was the steady, persistent absorption. But till the issue of a few weeks ago rose, as to who should be Pennsylvania's new president, no ample appreciation anywhere appeared of what was accomplished or what the accomplishment might signify.

Recognition of what are the actualities in this new railroad situation disposes of the harum-scarum speculation as to what may be afoot as to competition for the control of the New York, New Haven & Hartford system. J. P. Morgan and the Messrs. Rockefeller hold it now, and the Vanderbilt interests are the only probable bidders for it, wherefore it is likely for some time to continue an independent property. It is not beyond the range of things practical, however, that there will be changes in the administrative personnel of the corporation.

Boston & Maine may even be absorbed and Lucius Tuttle, president of that company, put at the head of the New Haven system, of which he was formerly operating vice president. Under any circumstances there will be neither rivalry nor clash between New York Central and Pennsylvania over New Haven control.—[New York Times.

NEWPORT PILOT IGNORED THE PROVIDENCE QUARANTINE

British topsail schooner Goldfinch, Captain McKay, arrived at Providence yesterday morning from Black river, Jamaica, with logwood for John D. Lewis.

The Newport pilot who brought the Goldfinch into port has got himself into a peck of trouble by taking the schooner past quarantine. Quarantine Officer Adamson's deputy hailed the schooner at Kettle Point, where the quarantine line for all vessels entering the port from foreign points is established, but the pilot kept right on with the Goldfinch and anchored her well up in the harbor. For this he was called down by Quarantine Officer Adamson and by Dr. Chapin of the board of health. A report of his conduct has also been made to the pilot commissioners. The Goldfinch, though called a topsail schooner, is really a hermaphrodite brig. She is a neat little craft, nearly new, and handsome as a picture. She hails from Liverpool, N. S.—[Providence Journal.

SAVED BY A GOOSE.

Bird Gives Warning to a Sentry That Had Saved Her Own Life.

This goose made its first appearance near Quebec over 50 years ago, when some British troops had been sent out to put down a rebellion of the colonists. A certain farm in the neighborhood, suspected of being a resort for the insurgents, was surrounded by sentries placed some distance apart, and one day the sentry whose post was near the gate of the farm heard a singular noise. A fine, plump goose soon appeared on a run, making directly for the spot where the soldier stood, and close behind, in pursuit, came a hungry fox. The sentry's first impulse was to shoot the thievish animal and rescue the goose, but, since the noise of the report would have brought out the guard on a false alarm, he was obliged to deny himself this satisfaction.

The fox was gaining on his intended prey, when the goose, in a frantic attempt to reach the sentry-box, ran his head and neck between the soldier's legs just as the pursuer was on the point of seizing it. Fortunately, the guard could use his bayonet without making a disturbance, and he did this to such good advantage that the pursuit was soon ended.

The rescued goose, evidently animated by the liveliest gratitude, rubbed its head against its deliverer's legs, and performed various other joyful and kitten-like antics. Then, deliberately taking up its residence at the garrison post, it walked up and down with the sentry while he was on duty, and thus accompanied each successive sentry who appeared to patrol that beat.

About two months later the goose actually saved the life of its particular friend in a very remarkable way. The soldier was again on duty at the same place; and on a moonlight night, when the moon was frequently obscured by passing clouds, the enemy had formed a plan to surprise and kill him. His feathered devotee was beside him, as usual, while he paced his lonely beat, challenging at every sound, and then "standing at ease" before his sentry-box. The goose always stood at ease, too, and it made a very comical picture.

But some undesirable spectators—at least, of the soldier's movements—were stealing cautiously toward the place, under cover of the frequent clouds and a line of stunted pine trees. Nearer and nearer to the post they crawled, until one of them, with uplifted knife, was about to spring on the unsuspecting man.

Then it was that the watchful goose covered itself with glory by rising unexpectedly from the ground and flapping its wings in the faces of the would-be assassins. They rushed blindly forward; the sentry succeeded in shooting one of the party and bayoneting another, while the goose continued to worry and confuse the remainder until they fled wildly for their lives.

The brave bird was at once adopted by the regiment, under the name of "Jacob," and decorated with a gold collar on which his name was engraved, in appreciation of his services. Ever after, during his life of twelve years, he did sentry duty at home and abroad; for he was taken to England at the close of the war in Canada, and greatly lamented there when he died. His epitaph reads, "Died on Duty!" and no human sentinel could have been more faithful than poor old Jacob.

As it may occur to some readers who have not made a study of the interesting and almost human ways of many animals to doubt the truth of so remarkable a story, they are referred to the gold collar, with Jacob's name and exploit engraved on it, which may still be seen at the headquarters of the Horse Guards in London.—[Ella Rodman Church, in St. Nicholas.

AMERICANS IN THE ORIENT.

The question is not whether we shall let the Filipinos govern themselves, but whether we shall allow a small portion of them to misgovern all the rest. We have no more right to abandon these islands and their occupants to savage or semi-civilized misrule than Dewey had to scuttle his ships after the battle of Manila. As trustees we cannot resign.

The practical duty of the United States, which no amount of historical misinformation will enable us honorably to avoid, is to re-establish peace and civil order in the Philippine islands, and to do it at once; and then to formulate a scheme of government for the islands, framed for the sole purpose of promoting the material welfare and political progress of their inhabitants. Precedents for the administration of some of the islands may be found in the history of the United States territories; suggestions for the government of others may be offered by the experience of other countries in similar undertakings. The main difficulty to be apprehended is not in devising plans of government, but in the execution of them.

We have only to seize and wisely use the advantages furnished by the unexpected issue of the war with Spain to make our influence in the East predominant, at least to the extent of securing complete and equal opportunities in the coming development of China, for the surplus knowledge, energy, labor, and capital of the people of the United States. Larger opportunities for the activity and employment of that increasing proportion of our people who are educated beyond the requirements of manual labor will arise; and a great reduction in the tariff upon imports, particularly the materials of manufacture, may be regarded as among the certain results of the expansion policy. The renewed ambition to enjoy our proper share of foreign commerce will bring about the reform of our navigation laws and the presence of our flag once more in every port on earth.

The American people never yet have failed on great occasions. They will not now. They will not permit the foreign policy of the country to be determined by considerations based on selfishness or fear. They will not shirk the duties or lose the opportunities which Providence has placed before them. They will cross the Pacific. When there, may they act so wisely and so justly by all the great interests committed to their care that in after ages the chief anniversaries to be celebrated by the regenerated and grateful populations of Oceanica and China will be those of the battle of Manila and the Fourth of July.—[Nathan Matthews, Jr.

GINGHAM HOUSE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

GINGHAM HOUSE GOWN.

A very pretty model, and one originated for Harper's Bazar with a view to providing an artistic and comfortable gown for large figures, is that of a gingham house gown, shown on this page. The front of the gown fits smoothly over the shoulders, and has shaped under-arm gores and one shallow dart. The long box-plaits that begin under the revers are attached at the skirt about four inches below the waist line, and stitched to a depth of 12 inches, after which the plait falls free, and its fulness mingles with that of the skirt, an obvious advantage for stout figures.

The back of the gown has a pretty curving yoke, into which are fitted two wide box-plaits that exactly meet under the centre point. Under the yoke the gown is fitted easily to the figure by centre and side back seams, from which springs the fulness that is carried into the black plaits. As these plaits proceed down the skirt their width increases until they are half as wide again at the foot of the skirt as they are at the top. A ribbon belt is attached at the centre seam at the back, and is brought forward under the plait and fastened in a bow at the centre of the front. The sleeves are of the prevailing shape, and extend (in one piece) over the hand, where they are slashed to a sufficient depth to give it freedom of movement.

To make this garment in any material between 27 and 30 inches wide will require 14 yards.

A PARADISE FOR BIRDS.

Birds having a keen eye out for residence quarters in Washington find the White House grounds the most fashionable and select neighborhood they can enter. This is especially so of birds desiring a quiet life, without being subjected to the "rubber-necking" of other birds, animals and human beings. Sparrows in great numbers have their homes in the grounds, but they would be just as much at home on Pennsylvania avenue, and it is said by the bird doctor at the White House that the sparrows which live around there are recluses, or have been run away from the thickly settled quarters of the city. There is plenty of room for more of these little rascals in the grounds, where the trees furnish quiet places for building and hatching; but the great majority of these birds appear not to care much for these delightful grounds. For feeding purposes the White House grounds are not a success, because they are always kept clean. In addition to the value of the grounds for residence purposes, there is one distinct advantage: that is in the bathing facilities. The White House sparrows are like Japanese people in this respect. When they are not chattering about this thing and that they are bathing in the different fountains in the grounds. At all hours of the day, but more particularly in the morning, the little sparrows assemble at the fountains, fill to the leaves of the water plants and duck as long as they desire. They are not good swimmers, and do not wear fancy bathing suits. Where water is convenient sparrows are cleanly little animals. Each leaf of a water plant is strong enough to hold the weight of a bird, and there is not much danger of drowning. At any rate, no life guards are stationed by the sparrows to watch and protect incautious birds.

Blackbirds, robins, thrushes, bluebirds and crows make their homes in the White House grounds, together with other varieties. Nearly all the year round robins may be seen in the grounds, and they have their nests somewhere about. They fly about the front of the grounds and hunt among the flowers and plants for worms. They do not bathe themselves like the sparrows. They are comparatively tame, as no one bothers them. These few robins have been in the grounds for years. They do not go far north, like the others of their tribe, in the summer months. The Washington climate suits them. In the winter they disappear for a trip to the winter resorts in the South, but come back in the early spring. The blackbirds seen in the grounds are big fellows, half as big as crows, and just as glossy black.

A raincrow which lives in the grounds and in the trees of Lafayette square can be heard just before each rain, giving his peculiar warning that rain may be expected. Old-timers at the White House say that this bird is a better prophet than the weather bureau, so far as rain is concerned.—[Washington Star.

A SONG OF THE ROAD.

O, I will walk with you, my lad, whichever way you fare,
You'll have me, too, the side of you, with heart as light as air;
No care for where the road you take's a-leading—anywhere—
It can but be a joyful jaunt the whilst you journey there.
The road you take's the path of love an' that's the bridth of two—
And I will walk with you, my lad—O, I will walk with you.

Ho! I will walk with you, my lad,
Be weather black or blue,
Or roadsides frost or dew, my lad—
O, I will walk with you.

Aye, glad, my lad, I'll walk with you, whatever winds may blow,
Or summer-blossoms stay our steps, or blinding drifts of snow;
The way that you set face and foot's the way that I will go,
And brave I'll be, abreast of you, the Saints and Angels know.
With loyal hand in loyal hand, and one heart made of two,
Through summer's gold, or winter's cold, it's I will walk with you.

Sure, I will walk with you, my lad,
As Love ordains me to—
To Heaven's door, and through, my lad,
O, I will walk with you.

—[James Whitcomb Riley, in July Lippincott's.

FANCIES.

Blonde Charlotte's face is aquiline,
And Bess has features retrousse;
One has a smile like summershine,
Through which wee dimples peep and play.
Her eyes are gems so rare and pure
They put to blush the Kohinoor;
Withal, she's such a winsome witch,
Is—well, no matter who or which!

When Charlotte dons her gown of gray
And Bess her jaunty suit of blue,
The two are fairer than the day
When June is ripened through and through.
And one is sweeter than the blooms
That pout without her curtained rooms;
They pout, no doubt, because their lot
Keeps them so far from—tell I'll not!

Dear Lot and Bess are young and gay
And keep my 'wildered wits awhirl;
I know not how to break away
From one and court the other girl.
For each has charms hard to resist
And each seems fashioned to be kissed.
At least, 'twere rapture to caress
That rarest coquette—"Which?" You must guess!

SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1899.

A HINDU REFORMER IN NEWPORT.

Mr. T. B. Pandian of Madras, India, at present in our city, came to this country some time ago to lecture in the principal cities on India, and the social, political, and religious conditions of her people.

Mr. Pandian is a Christian convert, from one of the oldest princely families of India; a highly educated gentleman, the author of several descriptive and technical works on India, and therefore thoroughly conversant with all questions pertaining to the East, and in every respect qualified to speak with authority, in bringing before the intelligent American public at large the grievances of his enslaved and down-trodden countrymen.

In the year 1892 Mr. Pandian issued a pamphlet entitled "The Slaves of the Soil," in which he gave a brief but faithful account of pariah life. This pamphlet at the time was the object of special annotations from the pen of two distinguished professors of the universities of Oxford and Madras, and has gone already through five editions, being widely circulated in both Europe and India, and has since received a large circulation in this country.

During 1893 Mr. Pandian was busy writing and lecturing in England, and was financially supported by one of the Indian native kings, the Rajah of Ramnand. The English public gave him a sympathetic and patient hearing, and the press was unanimous in supporting and upholding his views and efforts; many members of Parliament became deeply interested in the matter, and the secretary of state gave him an audience, and pressed the Indian government to open schools for the exclusive use of the pariah children.

The British government is by no means opposed or inimical to the pariah movement, for it has cheerfully granted to Mr. Pandian unlimited liberty to carry out to its fullest extent the needful reformation, the complete emancipation and regeneration of the pariah. The oppressors of India must be sought for among the Hindus themselves. Let us consider for a moment the kind of grievances Mr. Pandian is striving to remove from his fellow-countrymen. To mention only a few out of many, a pariah has no free access to the public wells, and having seldom any land of their own, they cannot dig wells; even if they had, they are too poor to carry out such work. Moreover, all legal rights are denied them; they cannot enter a court of justice. The mere touching of a person of a higher caste is a misdemeanor, inasmuch as their touch or contact is considered a pollution. Their children are debarred from attending public schools; they are ill-fed, half-clothed, in short are the social lepers of the land.

The pariahs number about nine millions, and are the descendants of the people who inhabited India at the time of the Aryan invasion. From the time of their conquest they have been kept under a kind of serfdom or abject slavery. However, with the advent of British rule, legal slavery was abolished; but virtually, practically, slavery is still extant. If it is conceded that it is the solemn and bounden duty of every noble-minded and large hearted man to lighten the burden and break the yoke of the oppressed children of God, the mission of Mr. Pandian will be readily understood; he is now before the American people, who are leaders in social reforms, to set forth in their true light the grievances of his down-trodden and fallen countrymen; to ask the generous American public for their sympathy and help that such a noble and humane cause deserves, and he feels confident that his earnest appeal will not remain unheeded. Indeed, gratifying to state that already Potter of New York, Bishop of Rhode Island, and the local all denominations have given full support, and this fact for the success of the pariah

The ... has ...eir ...me... ...eir achievements have contributed almost incalculably to the vigor and self-confidence of progressive Christianity.

The growth of societies like the Christian Endeavor associations, whose membership has received more than 100,000 additions in the last year, is one of the hopeful signs of the times; it means that the Christian spirit is growing stronger and stronger in the heart of the rising generation, it means that the methods of practical Christianity are acquiring a firmer hold on the sympathy and support of the people, and, above all things, it signifies that the churches are building up in these organizations a vast reserve power capable of supporting a steadily broadening scope of evangelical effort throughout the world.

The work of the Christian Endeavor societies is inspired by the highest ideals of Christian duty, and its uplifting influence is a world-wide appeal for the religious unity of the races of the earth as foretold by the Master. We may, therefore, regard the great convention now gathered in Detroit as a step along the path toward this sublime object, and for that reason its deliberations will command the sympathetic interest of the entire Christian world.

REGRETS.

Richard Croker telegraphed his regrets at not being able to be present at Tammany's Fourth of July celebration. The indications are that he had all his arrangements made to bring out Augustus Van Wyck as the Tammany candidate for President and proposed to give him a good send-off on this occasion. But Governor Hogg of Texas spoiled all the well-laid plans to this effect by virtually naming William J. Bryan as the standard-bearer for the party in the next campaign.

Most of the newspapers are treating this episode as a blunder on the part of the Texan governor, but it is in some quarters shrewdly suspected of being the work of John C. Sheehan, who had prepared the way in advance. Certain it is that all the speakers were instructed to preserve entire silence on the question of Bryan's candidacy and that all did so until the representative of the greatest state in the Union was called upon to speak. Governor Hogg was not among the original orators selected for the occasion, and was brought into the affair as a makeshift in the absence of one of the regular speakers. It would be a curious outcome if the war between Croker and Sheehan took on this form, and Mr. Croker may feel compelled to come home earlier than he intended to conteract the influence of this untoward act.

THAT AND THIS.

This is the way the Springfield Union sizes up one of the phases of politics in a neighboring state: "Time was when the Democratic party of Massachusetts was led by men of brains, and the party was respected by all the voters. The Democratic party that followed the leadership of John E. and William E. Russell, of Matthews and Quincy and our own Carroll, was a power in the state, and in the nation, and its leaders were respected and honored.

"Today there is a Democratic party of the state of Massachusetts with a single leader, a dictator, who snaps the party whip and the faithful follow without question. That leader is George Fred Williams. In former years the party stood for principles that Democrats had espoused for half a century. Today the party stands for principles espoused by William J. Bryan and George Fred Williams."

WITHOUT REASON.

General Henderson, the next Republican Speaker and a warm friend of ...sion veterans on the floor of the House, has raised his voice in vain to defend Pension Commissioner H. Clay Evans against the attacks upon his administration of the pension bureau. It was only a few weeks ago that General Henderson told an Iowa audience that under Evans the past year more pensions had been granted than in any previous year since 1893. "I want to publicly acknowledge the great wrong I have done H. Clay Evans," said General Henderson. "Boys, he is your friend, and the friend of the old soldiers everywhere."

But it is of no use to defend Evans. Over 10 Grand Army posts in Kansas have peremptorily demanded his removal, and one of them, Custer post of Spring Hill, in a resolution passionately declared: "It is just and proper that we invoke the action of a just God to remove a President that retains H. Clay Evans as pension commissioner."

All the newspapers in the country are speaking in complimentary terms of Robert Bonner, whose death has been reported. They have a right to do so, because he was one of the greatest newspaper magnates of the times in which he lived, and made his old "Ledger" a power in the literary world. He was, besides, a man of the most sterling integrity, and having amassed great wealth used it in the service of humanity.

Senator Tillman has a faculty of discovering conspiracies in most unexpected quarters. He announces the opinion that the new regiments are being recruited for the Philippines merely as a pretext for raising a large standing army for protection of trusts when the "inevitable war between labor and capital" breaks out. Hardly a week passes that the South Carolina politician does not uncover some new conspiracy against the downtrodden masses. Poor man!

The latest rumor is to the effect that Secretary Alger is proposing to withdraw from the Senatorial contest in Michigan rather than yield his present position. It appears to be about time that the President took a hand in the scheme.

The story turns out to be true that General Luna was assassinated by the followers of Aguinaldo, according to first reports. The murderers have been tried and acquitted, as a matter of course, since the rebel chief virtually presided in the court.

The Spanish government puts the unfortunate commanders in her army and navy on trial for their lives when they meet with defeat. We are happy to say that Admiral Cervera has been duly tried and acquitted of wrong-doing.

The new president of Yale suggests a somewhat startling innovation, in proposing to establish a bank to transact the university's business. Whether he would have it confined to these transactions is not stated.

An appeal is made for at least $15,000 to aid General Wood in his beneficent work at Santiago. Now that yellow fever has broken out in that city the probabilities are that the sum will be needed.

THE PROPER PLACE OF PLAY.

At the recent conference on physical training, held at the Young Men's Christian Association Training School in Springfield, Mass., some original notions as to the place of play in human development were advanced by Dr. Luther Gulick. The doctor is at the head of the physical department of the training school, in which he has for years emphasized the importance of play in physical culture. He has little sympathy with mechanical gymnastics, finding more real value in the unsystematized but energetic and co-operative outdoor sports of English young men than in the systematized gymnastics of the German and Swedes. An interesting point brought out in the discussion is that these co-operative games, in which the success of the individual is important only as leading to the success of the group, are peculiar to Anglo-Saxon boys. There is a temptation to draw from this the deduction that this spirit of co-operation, developed in play, and later applied to the more serious affairs of life, furnishes one explanation for the superiority of the English races in their competition with the peoples of the earth.

Dr. Gulick is strongly inclined to the theory that play follows the course of the development of the race, and has a distinct and important place in the growth of the individual. His logical conclusion is that play having a place in nature, it ought to be continued later in life than has been customary with the American people. He has divided plays into three groups, according to the degree of unselfish co-operation required. The first group of individual, self-centred activities begins at birth, and from mere muscular motions, playing with blocks, etc., develops into "making things," shooting with slings or bows, swimming, rowing, etc. In mature life this type of isolated activity finds scope in gymnastics, Indian clubs, etc. The second group, commonly beginning at the age of seven, includes competitive games, marbles, hide-and-seek, and develops into hunting, fishing, boxing, billiards, bowling, etc. The third, and most highly organized group, that of co-operative games, begins at the age of twelve with base ball or cricket, and takes various forms, including "gangs," often of a predatory and most reprehensible character, the members of which, however, may become sterling men.—[New York Post.

You can tell just as well as a physician whether your Kidneys are diseased or healthy. Fill a tumbler with urine and let it stand 24 hours; if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, discolored or pale; if it is ropy or stringy, your Kidneys and Bladder are in a dangerous condition and you do not need a physician to tell you so.

Kidney diseases should be attended to at once, for almost 90 per cent of our unexpected deaths of today are from that cause. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the only sure cure known for diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation. It is marvelous how it stops that pain in the back, relieves the necessity of urinating so often at night, drives away that scalding pain in passing water, corrects the bad effects of whiskey and beer and shows its beneficial effects on the system in an incredibly short time. It is sold by all drug stores at $1 a bottle.

If you would like to test Favorite Remedy free of charge, send your full name and postoffice address to the DR. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., and a free trial bottle, together with a pamphlet of valuable medical advice, will be sent you by return and postpaid, providing you mention the Newport Daily News when you write. DR. NATHANAEL GREENE.

Dr. Nathanael Greene died at his home, "Greensdale," in Middletown, this morning, in his ninety-first year. He had been in poor health for several months, and the infirmities of age came steadily upon him after a serious illness last year. He was unable to attend the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Society of Cincinnati Tuesday last for the first time since he was elected its president in 1878.

Dr. Nathanael Greene was born June 22, 1809, on Cumberland Island, Georgia, and was the eldest son of Nathanael Ray Greene and grandson of Major General Nathanael Greene, Rhode Island's most illustrious soldier in the Revolutionary army. His mother was the daughter of Ethan and Ann (Ward) Clarke, who died January 6, 1886, at the advanced age of 102 years.

Nathanael Greene passed his boyhood in East Greenwich in this state, whither his father had removed shortly after his birth, and lived there until 1836. His school education was gained chiefly at the academy at East Greenwich and in 1824 he entered the freshman class at Amherst College, in the following year entering the sophomore class at Brown University. He left the latter institution the following year and began the study of medicine in at office at Whitestone, N. Y. Here he remained about a year, returning to East Greenwich and continuing his duties in the office of Dr. Charles Eldridge of that town.

His family being large landowners, he employed several years after the completion of medical studies in farming, beginning the pursuit of his profession in 1848. He had, in the meantime, in 1827, married, his wife being Mary Jane, daughter of Colonel William and Harriet (Gibbs) Moore of this city, and removed to Middletown, having purchased the farm on the west shore, about five miles from this city, where he had since made his home. His wife died a few years ago, they having lived together over 70 years. No children were born of the marriage.

Dr. Greene in 1842 commanded a company of volunteers raised in Middletown and Portsmouth for the service of the state against the revolutionary organization known as the Dorr government. He was afterwards in command of a company of cavalry, organized at that time, in the state establishment, with the rank of colonel. This company saw no service and was disbanded within a few months. He was a member of the state senate in the General Assembly from Middletown from 1848 to 1851, and was for several years president of the old Aquidneck Agricultural Society.

At the preliminary meeting, held in Providence December 12, 1877, for the rehabilitation of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, which had been held in abeyance for various causes since 1835, Dr. Greene was unanimously chosen president pro tem of the society, and at the annual meeting July 4, 1878, was unanimously elected its president, being re-elected at each succeeding annual meeting and having held the position until his death, being always present at the society's meeting until the recent gathering July 4 of this year. He had been repeatedly elected a delegate to the triennial meetings of the General Society of the Cincinnati and was at all times prominent in the counsels of the organization.

Dr. Greene's practice was divided between this city and Middletown, he having an office several years ago on Pelham street, being connected with Dr. Nathanael Greene Stanton in the practice of the principles of homeopathy, in which he had been schooled. After his retirement from active practice he was a frequent visitor to Newport, and his venerable appearance made him a familiar figure on the streets. He had a wide circle of acquaintances in this city, and was held in high esteem among the older portions of the community, in which he had for many years labored for the amelioration of the sufferings of the poor and oppressed.

FELL FROM CIRCUS TRAIN AND FRACTURED HIS SKULL.

This morning the section men on the railroad found, about one mile this side of the Middletown station, a man who was unconscious, and apparently had fallen from the circus train which left here at 2:24 this morning. Word was sent to the Middletown station, and the man was placed on the train due here at 8:10. The ambulance went to the depot and with Officer Crowley took him to the Newport Hospital. The injured man is about 28 years of age, and wore rough clothing, as though he was knocking about with the circus. A man somewhat similar in appearance was seen last night lying in the small patrol wagon of the show. The policeman suggested that he go under cover, as the fog was very heavy and he would get wet, but he did not. The injured man was wet, just as though he had been out all night.

He had evidently fallen off a car and fractured his skull, leaving a depression in the top of the head. He could not talk intelligently, and nothing could be learned regarding the accident. In his pocket was found a card from W. F. Wyatt, with a memorandum for 25 pounds of fish. Mr. Wyatt remembers a man, similar in appearance to the injured man, buying 25 pounds of fish, about two weeks ago and taking a memorandum. A card with William Quigley's name and a memorandum about beer was also found.

The man was later identified as James Larkin of 333 Eddy street, Providence. He was a fireman and had been employed on a tug.

Lawton Post, No. 5, Grand Army of the Republic, were also present and joined the escort of the body to the Old cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. W. J. Luth, Arnold James, William Hamilton and William H. H. Barker. The Masonic ritual was conducted at the grave by St. John's Lodge, under the direction of Junior Warden N. Thomas Hodson.

IN DEFENSE OF FREE SCHOOLS.

In the May number of the North American Review Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis published an article entitled "The Curse in Education," in which she criticised sharply the methods in vogue in our public schools, and pointed out some of the undesirable results of our educational system. In the July number of the Review Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer takes up the argument, contending that the "curse" complained of, if curse there be, is vastly outweighed by the innumerable blessings which our free schools confer upon the people, and showing, by special reference to the reforms and improvements which have been effected in the educational arrangements of New York city, that the defects in our system are rapidly being removed. Mrs. Van Rensselaer emphasizes the value of manual training:

"To train the hand means to train the powers of the eye, and to bring the muscular and nervous system into working accord. Some kinds of manual training give the whole body useful exercise. All kinds rest the brain and relieve the body after purely intellectual work, while cultivating them in another fashion and developing the creative instinct. And they teach also mental and moral precision and honesty. The teacher, and even the pupil himself, may think that a book lesson has been learned when it has not been, or that an idea has been mastered when it has been only half grasped or wholly misunderstood. But this cannot happen with manual work. A tangible thing is done, and rightly done, or it is not. A stitched seam is straight, a leaf is correctly drawn, a carpenter's joint is true, or it is not. Neither deception nor self-deception is possible in the workshop, and the spirit of accuracy, system, conscientiousness, self-reliance and helpful co-operation that it develops is carried over into the other class rooms. Moreover, the workshop may cultivate taste as well as skill; and, although it does not teach trades, it celebrates the dignity of manual labor, and often develops individual likings and aptitudes for it. The same is the case with the lessons in 'domestic science' given to girls. They are not taught to be 'professed' cooks or dressmakers. But their fingers, eyes and palates are trained; the importance of cleanliness, neatness, order and exactness is impressed upon them; respect for household work and interest in it are awakened, and these great benefits are augmented by such instruction in hygiene and alimentary laws as could hardly be made to seem practical and important without the help of the cooking stove."

FORT RODMAN TO BE GARRISONED.

Fort Rodman will have a permanent regular army garrison within a very few days. Captain John A. Lundeen of the Seventh artillery was in New Bedford yesterday, making arrangements for the arrival of the first detachment of 20 men, which has been ordered there in about a week. The rest of the battery will arrive within a short time till a full garrison is on hand. In future, the equipment of the fort will be such as to necessitate keeping a permanent garrison there the year round.

SPEED AND AIR RESISTANCE IN CYCLING.

It is pretty well understood among those wheelmen who have given any thought to the subject that the chief element of resistance in riding the bicycle on level roads is due to the atmosphere. The simplest proof of this is to be found on a windy day, when the difference between riding against and riding before the wind has only to be felt to be appreciated. The remarkable feat of the professional cyclist Murphy, who, June 21, rode a mile behind a locomotive in one minute and five seconds, proves what an extraordinarily large proportion of the effort of the rider is expended in overcoming air resistance. The shortest time in which a mile has ever been covered with a flying start, unpaced, is one minute, fifty-five and four-fifths seconds. This was done by the rider Hamilton at Denver, June 18, 1898. With human pacing, where the rider is partially protected from the rush of air, the fastest time has been made by Taylor, who covered the mile in one minute and thirty-one and four-fifths seconds. In the recent trial provision was made for inclosing the rider in front, above and on both sides by a wind shield, and making this protection so complete that he was riding practically in still air. The result shows that complete protection from the wind enables a rider to increase his speed by about 100 per cent. Comparing their records, it is questionable whether Murphy could ride a mile unpaced in as short a time as Hamilton; or, to put it in other words, it is probable that Hamilton could ride a mile under the Murphy conditions in less than one minute.

From a scientific standpoint this extraordinary feat will have a value as attracting further attention to the serious nature of air resistance, for it raises the question as to whether the form of all vehicles that move at high speed should not be modified so as to present the least possible resistance to the wind. This is particularly true of locomotives and cars, and it is conceivable that some light form of sheathing extending from the cars nearly to the rails, and from car to car, might materially aid in reducing the air resistance.

Depew Denies the Railroad Deal.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Chauncey M. Depew was quoted today as saying there is no truth in the rumored combine of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads.

Professor Reginald A. Fessenden of the Western University of Pennsylvania has invented a telescope which it is said will tend to lessen the efficiency of smokeless powder in warfare by locating the flash when the powder is discharged. The War Department will make a test of the instrument before the examining board.

RATES TO BE ADVANCED.

East-Bound Freight Charges to Go Up July 24.

CHICAGO, July 8.--East-bound freight rates are to be advanced July 24, but the advanced figures and details still remain to be settled by the presidents. Outstanding contracts and other difficulties incident to a general restoration of rates have so far prevented a final agreement. The freight men have agreed upon a higher schedule of rates and submitted it to the presidents. The new grain rates will be considerably in advance of the present rates, which are down to the lowest basis. Export provision rates are to be increased five cents, the present rate being 20 cents, and domestic provision rates will remain at their present figure, 25 cents. The presidents have substantially agreed upon the rates, and only a few questions of detail remain to be settled.

WAGE QUESTION NOT REACHED.

Tin Plate Workers Demand Shutdown During the Summer.

CHICAGO, July 8.--The question of wages was not reached at yesterday's meeting of the officers of the American Tin Plate Company and representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Tin Workers, the entire meeting being taken up in a discussion of the demands of the men for a shutdown of the works for six weeks during the summer season. The men make the claim that the works are shut down from time to time during the year, that the health of the men should be considered, and the closing made at a time of the year when the work is the most severe upon those who have to handle the hot metal. The company will make its answer to the men at today's session, when the wage question will be taken up.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Marsland and family and Mr. and Mrs. Berryman of Fall River, Mr. Frank Stevens and Miss Stevens of New Bedford, and Mr. Frank and Mamie Brazil of Portsmouth. Music, both vocal and instrumental, with interesting games, made the time pass quickly. A chowder was served in the evening; also cake, cream, fruit and candy.

The schooner which has been at the wharf of the Street Railway Company, for the last week, discharging coal, left this morning.

The annual clambake of the Union Church will take place August 16.

ROCKPORT AND PORTSMOUTH TO WELCOME THE FLEET.

The little town of Rockport is desirous of giving the North Atlantic fleet a rousing reception, but Captain Taylor has been compelled to decline the offer of a banquet to the officers, as was originally proposed, and the plans of the citizens somewhat disturbed by this declination. The town will, however, arrange some way of giving the ships a royal welcome. The reception committee will go out in a steamer to meet the fleet and further arrangements will be made at that time. Rockport will do what it can to make the visit of the squadron an occasion that will be remembered for a long time in the community. Cottagers are coming to the celebration from Manchester, Magnolia, Gloucester, Beverly and other towns, and it is expected that there will be enough visitors to double, perhaps treble, the population of the town. The feeling in the town is expressed by one member o the committee, who said last night: "We haven't had a full-fledged warship here for 10 years, and now that we are going to have six of the finest in the navy, we propose to make known our appreciation. This town will be wide awake tomorrow."

The citizens of Portsmouth, N. H., are also preparing a reception for the fleet. The board of aldermen held a meeting last evening to perfect plans for the entertainment of the officers and crews of the ships and it was decided to have a reception at Hotel Wentworth during the stay of the squadron, but further plans have not as yet been decided upon. The fleet is expected to arrive at Portsmouth Monday.

It is estimated that the consumption of beer in the entire world amounts to $1,050,000,000 per annum. This seems to be an almost incredible figure, but does not appear so strange when it is considered that the beer which is consumed throughout the world in a single year would make a lake three and three-quarters miles long, a mile wide and six feet deep.

Does Coffee Agree With You?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15c. and 25c.

AMERICANS AHEAD.

Warner and sweep the rebels out of every nook in the Philippines."

Although a few great balls are still in sight the London season is already waning. People are flitting into the country much earlier than usual. Next week will be given over to Newmarket, where there are numerous house parties for the second July meeting. During the following week the season winds up with the Duchess of Portland's ball. There are still several fashionable weddings in prospect, the most notable being that of the Earl of Shaftesbury and Lady Constance Grosvenor, who will have 15 bridesmaids, while many persons are looking forward with great interest to the reception to be given by the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland at Stafford House, July 26, to the members of the Anglo-American League and their friends, at which Mr. Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, and Mrs. Choate and many prominent American and English people will be present.

After a long period of mourning, Mrs. John W. Mackay has reopened her beautiful house on Carlton House Terrace. She gave two big dinners during the week, which were followed by wonderful music.

London has been much enlivened during the week by the visit of the officers and a large number of cadets belonging to United States training ship Monongahela, who have been spending five days' leave at the Metropole, energetically sightseeing, riding in electric cars and generally enjoying themselves.

The Fourth of July was never so universally celebrated by the Americans in London as was the Fourth of Tuesday last. In addition to the celebrations at the Hotel Cecil and the United States embassy, there were a large number of private luncheons, dinners and river parties. Mr. and Mrs. John Meiggs Ewen of Chicago took a large party of Americans in a steam launch from their place at Datchet to Maidenhead, while the employes of the Commercial Cable Company, with Mr. George Ward of New York, general manager of the company, celebrated in a similar manner on a big launch gayly decorated with American flags.

Thursday was Speech Day at Harrow, the first under the new head master, Doctor Wood, and attracted a great crowd of distinguished people to the school.

Thursday afternoon the last meet of the Four-in-Hand Club occurred at the Horse Guards' parade. It was undoubtedly the smartest of the season, there being 22 coaches in line. The Duke of Marlborough's team was greatly admired. He was accompanied by the duchess, Lady Norah Churchill and Lord Cairns. In the evening occurred the Duchess of Devonshire's ball within the beautiful grounds of Devonshire House, with illuminations and supper tent exactly the same as on the occasion of the famous jubilee fancy dress ball. It proved to be the most brilliant of the season. The musicale given by Mrs. Alfred Harmsworth the same evening attracted a crowd of fashionable people to the Grafton galleries, where the spacious rooms were decorated with such a wealth of roses as never before seen in London. The program, which was also on the most lavish scale, included Paderewski, Coquelin, Leonora Jackson, David Bispham, Susanne Adams and Maurice Farkoa.

In spite of the many counter attractions and the hot weather most of the theatres fared well this week. "An American Citizen" is doing so well at the Duke of York's theatre that Nat Goodwin will prolong its run. As a souvenir of the performance at Windsor, July 4, when Grau's company presented the opera of "Il Pagliacci" before large gatherings of royalties, the queen presented Maurice Grau with a handsome silver inkstand with the royal monogram and Suzanne Adams with a gold bracelet bearing the queen's initials.

Owing to the shock of Augustin Daly's death, Ada Rehan will be unable to undertake the leading part in the Drury Lane drama, especially written for her by Cecil Raleigh. It is hoped, however, that Miss Rehan will be able to appear at Drury Lane in a short Shakespearian season next spring.

IT IS A PITY SO FEW WOMEN

Are Entirely Free from Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Anna Carston, Clayton, Ill.

Miss Anna Carston, Clayton, Ill., says: "Your medicine did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time had I not used it. I am feeling so well now. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months. If I am ever troubled with anything of the kind again I shall take nothing but Pe-ru-na, and I can cheerfully recommend it to my friends."

A vast multitude of women have found Pe-ru-na an indispensible remedy. It meets all their irregularities, critical periods, and peculiar weaknesses.

Pe-ru-na is applicable to catarrh of any mucous surface of the body in all stages. From the slightest catarrhal attack or cold to the most chronic or pronounced case of hypertrophic form Pe-ru-na is a specific.

Men and women are subject to catarrh. Women are even more subject to catarrh than men. This is due to many causes. The chief cause is the delicacy of her organism, as compared to man. The extreme sensitiveness of the mucous lining of every organ of a woman's body is well known to physicians. This explains why, in part at least, so few women are entirely free from catarrh.

Miss Sadie Martinot, the prominent young actress, writes to Dr. Hartman in regard to Pe-ru-na, as follows: "It gives me great pleasure to recommend Pe-ru-na to members of my profession. I have found it most helpful. I consider Pe-ru-na of especial benefit to women and particularly recommend it to them. My dressing table is never without it."

Miss Sadie Martinot, the talented actress.

Everywhere the people, especially the women, are praising Pe-ru-na as a remedy for all forms of catarrhal difficulties. Send for free catarrh book. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address, Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

SEASONABLE STYLES.

Changes in Styles for the Summer Man's Dress.

It very frequently happens that the summer girl overshadows the summer man; not in importance—far from that, as he is the most important item in the whole campaign. He is dressed for, longed for and squabbled for. He is overshadowed in the matter of clothes. Those who cater to men and model their fashions are not held in such high esteem as those who do the same thing for the fair sex—indeed, men are considered just a wee bit above the frivolities of dress, and yet, if the truth were known, many of them are more finicky and fussy about the set of their coats and trousers than the average woman.

These "lords of creation" have just as many infinitesimal changes in the cut of their trousers, the length of their coats, the twist of their scarfs, the brims of their hats, the shape of their shoes and the color of their shirts as have their female relations. And these little differences, so slight in themselves as to be almost imperceptible to the uninitiated, are so marked to the well-informed man that he can detect a past fashion in a glance.

For this season the newest dress-shirts have wide bosoms and two buttonholes. The cuffs are attached. Gray suede gloves are still worn, though the preference now seems to be given to dark tan. In handkerchiefs fine linen, with narrow hemstitched border and embroidered initial, is en regle for the perfectly dressed man.

For business wear the ever-favorite double-breasted sack coat is the style; the waistcoat should match. If a single-breasted coat is worn the trousers must match; if a double-breasted coat, the trousers may be of different material. A derby must be worn with this costume.

Colored shirts with cuffs attached are good form for morning wear, but the collar must be of white linen. The Ascot, four-in-hand or "once-over" tie is used with this costume. The shoes are of russet or calf-laced.

For evening wear the little dinner jacket or Tuxedo is used for informal occasions. Twill silk roll collars will be made on this jacket, and a pique waistcoat is usually worn with it. White twill silk waistcoats also promise to be popular.

Three forms of collar are now used—the straight stand-up, the stand-up with turned corners, the points of which are rounded, and the round-pointed double upright.

The golf jacket for this year is green, which many consider not altogether an improvement on the old scarlet jacket, which lent such a touch of color to the links. Golf knickers are made tighter at the knee and less baggy over the hips than formerly. Thick stockings of green tartan plaid are worn, and gaiters are no longer en regle. Low shoes are better for outdoor sports than ordinary walking shoes.

From London the information comes to us that there is no change in the shape of top hats this year. They are still slightly bell-shaped, with the leaf somewhat less curled than last year. The prince wears a broader leaf than is commonly seen, and flatter in the rim than last year. Frock coats are very much worn in the West end at present, but when the weather gets warmer open morning coats are to be the thing. The prince's heavy overcoats have velvet cuffs, but that fashion has not found favor, being of French importation.

A new fad in underwear is the knee-length "pants." This abbreviated style is destined to "fill a long-felt want" with wheel and golf devotees. The innovation bids fair to revolutionize the trade.

Among certain of the real smart set gold buttons on full-dress waistcoats are affected. The wearer's monogram often appears in bas-relief.

Black silk and satin broad end ties, with plain band and artistically embroidered ends, are much affected. Some new effects in rumchunda neckerchiefs are now used to complete man's outfit for the gentler sports. They are worn as sashes. Bicycle hose this year is of the unobtrusive class. Fancy tops are still proper, but the colors and designs are quieter and neater. All bicycle trousers are made with cuffs which button at the side, but these are now made of the same material as the body of the garment. Full suits of the same material are not worn by the makers of fashion, but light trousers with a fancy check or plaid are the thing, with a sack coat of solid dark color.

The stylish shoe is laced low, but not so extremely as before, the tops being above the ankles. This style not only prevents the accumulation of sand and small stones in the shoes, but also conceals the connection between the footless riding hose and the ordinary socks. Coats are cut on the ordinary lines of those worn during business hours, and can be either square or round-cornered.

With the dark coats and light trousers a light hat is worn. An effort was made to do away with the bicycle cap and substitute the fedora, but the attempt has not met with much approval, owing to the extra weight and consequent heat of the felt. The best-dressed riders still wear the caps, and have them to match the trousers.

HOW TWO BRAVE MEN DIED.

A flying column of British marines and blue-jackets and some friendly natives had been pushing farther and farther inland along the bush roads, and day after day passed without any opposition. We were beginning to think that there was no fight in the rebels, when suddenly, April 1, our small force was attacked by about a thousand Mataafa warriors, cleverly planted in ambush on the German plantation of Vailele. The attack came first from the rear, and almost simultaneously came firing all along the left of the line, as well as from the front. The Colt automatic gun which the Americans had with them, and which was capable of firing 450 rounds a minute, was brought quickly to bear by Lieutenant Lansdale, but it was suddenly jammed, and the bullets of the enemy poured into the column from three sides, so that our men could find no shelter even behind the cocoanut trees with which the plantation is studded. Several men dropped under the hot fire of the enemy, and Lieutenant Lansdale, the executive officer of the Philadelphia, had his legs shattered by a rebel bullet while endeavoring to fix up the disabled gun. Some of the officers and men wanted to charge, but that would have been of little avail. Indeed, a charge would have probably meant the surrounding of the whole force, and the cutting off of the only line of retreat. And so the British and the Americans fought on shoulder to shoulder, till it became obvious that safety lay only in retreat.

Lansdale and brave Ensign Monaghan by some means or other got left behind. They were probably lost sight of in the trees or the long grass of the plantation. For a time a sailor was with them, but his ammunition was exhausted, and Lansdale, now badly wounded, asked his comrades to save themselves. The sailor went, but Monaghan refused to budge, and continued to help along his superior officer whose leg was shattered. The rest is soon told. They found his body next day, not far from Lansdale's. Both had their heads cut off. Between the two lay a dead Mataafa warrior. Two other dead men lay near; and Lansdale, in addition to his shattered leg, had now a bullet through the heart. It was easy to read the story. The brave young ensign, surrounded by the rebels, fought till the last, and not till his comrade was shot dead did he think of retreat. And I have no manner of doubt that it was his rifle or revolver that had accounted for the three dead Samoans who lay near. The American navy lost two brave officers, but the American nation is the richer for a story that will live in history.—[Malcolm Ross, in Harper's Weekly.

Freezing Weather in July

Would cause great discomfort and loss, but fortunately it is seldom known. A vast amount of misery is caused at this season, however, by impoverished blood, poor appetite and general debility. These conditions may be remedied by enriching the blood and toning the stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine seems to put new life into the whole physical system, simply because of its wonderful power to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood, create an appetite and invigorate the digestive functions. We advise you to get a bottle and try it if you are not feeling just right. It will do you more good than a six weeks' vacation. It is the best medicine money can buy.

WONDERS OF THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

Surrounded by an ever-placid ocean, remote from the busy world, Santa Catalina is an ideal spot of rest and summer abandon. "The world forgetting, by the world forgot," one can retreat to this precipitous isle and enjoy boating, fishing and hunting to his heart's content.

The fishing, being the least laborious, attracts the multitude. A royal sport it is in these waters. Here abound the shark, the jew-fish, and the leaping tuna, weighing from 50 to 250 pounds, a catch which involves patience, muscle and management. The sea-bass here runs to 200 pounds in weight. So many and curious are the aquatic inhabitants of this region that a dozen boats fitted with glass in their bottoms have been built and are now in use in Avalon bay, to enable visitors quietly to study the living wonders of the deep. Here may be seen the yellowtail and the angel-fish, an electric fish that continually emits blue gleams, the lamp-fish and other phosphorescent marine animals which illumine the water, the bonito, the humming-bird of the sea; banded sheepshead and highly colored sculpins, rays, skates, crabs, sea-stars, sea-cucumbers, echini, limpets, and abalones. Hundreds of thousands of giant sunfish bask in these waters; cuttle-fish eject their ink when disturbed; jelly-fish drift with the tide; the electric ray awaits an incautious meddler; and now and then the tentacles of the hideous octopus wave as if feeling for a victim. Students of zoölogy can find no better place for the study of sea life than the waters surrounding the island of Santa Catalina. Fish are caught in such wasteful abundance that thousands of pounds are thrown away daily.—[Self Culture for July.

LITTLE COMPTON ASSAILANTS PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

Town Sergeant Edward Peckham of Little Compton came to Newport this morning, bringing William T. Simmons and his son, William T. Simmons, Jr., who were participants in an assault upon Charles Bone near the common at Little Compton last Saturday evening. The Messrs Simmons, who have been in hiding since the assault, gave themselves up to the town sergeant this morning, and were at once brought to Tiverton, and thence by the electric cars to this city, where they were arraigned before Judge Baker. They pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault, but were unable to furnish bail and were committed to await trial. They will this afternoon be taken to Cranston. George Simmons, a younger son, who was the most serious aggressor in the assault, is still at large.

Mrs. Anna Andrews of Slatersville, North Smithfield, mother of ex-Town Clerk Byron Andrews, is 99 years old today, and held an informal reception to friends and neighbors. Mrs. Andrews lives in a house built in Colonial days and situated on a sightly eminence overlooking the villages of Slatersville and Forestdale in North Smithfield. She is a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, and bids fair to emulate her great-grandfather, who, at the time of his death, was in his one hundred and second year. She is by no means a bedridden invalid, but frequently walks alone about the house and the yard, and one looking at her plump cheeks, tinged with the pink flush of health, and at her by no means emaciated form, would certainly take this hale old lady to be a well preserved woman of 65 or 70.

At the special meeting of the Warwick town council held at Apponaug yesterday afternoon, the members carried out their expressed intention of relinquishing probate jurisdiction and elected a probate judge. As had been expected, Town Solicitor P. H. Quinn of Riverpoint was elected. Judge Quinn was the only lawyer in the town who was prominently or actively connected with the movement which resulted in the overthrow of the Warwick machine. He is a native of Warwick, having been born at Phenix December 16, 1869. He attended the public school in that village until old enough to go to work in the Clyde Print Works, where he remained until he secured a position with a printing house in Providence. Later he began the study of law in the office of the the late E. L. Gannon, who at that time was associated with Attorney General Tanner. He was admitted to the bar in August, 1885, and soon became one of the most promising young lawyers.

Mrs. Millie Brown of Pawtucket died at the Rhode Island Hospital yesterday morning, aged 93 years and 27 days. She was a slave from her birth until the civil war made her free. She was born in Leesburg, London county, Va., and while in slavery belonged to three or four different families. Her second mistress was Miss Harrison, who married Bushrod Washington, a nephew of President George Washington, and she went with her mistress, serving in Mr. Washington's family until Mrs. Washington's death. Mrs. Washington leaving no children, her property, including Mrs. Brown and her son, John N. Brown, went back to the Harrisons, and Mrs. Brown served in Henry T. Harrison's family until she was freed by the war. She then went to Washington, where she resided until about 10 years ago when her son brought her to Pawtucket, and she had lived with him since.

LICENSING AUTOMOBILES IN CHICAGO.

Questions in reference to the use of automobiles in Chicago, other than the right to use them in the parks, are to be settled, the mayor having directed the corporation counsel to draft an ordinance covering the whole subject. The purpose is to require all persons who desire to steer automobiles through the streets, whether the vehicles are to be used for hire or for private purposes, to pass an examination and to procure a license. Of course the examination, so far as knowledge of applied electricity is concerned, will be only rudimentary, and the fee for examination will be nominal; but the precaution is of the same kind as that which requires the engineer of the smallest steam yacht to give proof of his skill before being permitted to run his boat on navigable streams. The limit of speed to be allowed automobiles is also to be fixed, and in this and other respects the ordinance is expected to follow the lines of a municipal regulation on the same subject in Paris.

10—Price changes were mixed at the opening of the stock market today, those stocks which developed strength late yesterday continuing upward for the most part. Realizing continued in other parts of the list. Manhattan reached 1¾ and Atchison preferred also dropped a fraction after a momentary advance. Pennsylvania and New York Central both showed fractional declines.

11—Pressure against Tennessee Coal sent it down 1½, but the movement was without effect on the general list. Rubber preferred jumped three points and Lake Erie & Western preferred 1½. There was large buying of Atchison preferred, which lifted it to 62½. A break of almost 5 points in Manhattan rather unsettled the list.

The PIANOLA!

SAUER the great pianist is an enthusiastic admirer of the Pianola. So interested was he at hearing it play that after the rendition of two or three classical compositions he ordered one shipped to his home abroad for his personal use.

ROSENTHAL not only recommends the Pianola to lovers of music, but says every professional musician should make a study of it.

The remarkable way in which it played one of his own studies captivated him and he ordered one shipped immediately to Vienna.

Every artist of note who has heard the instrument gives them a hearty endorsement

All are cordially invited to call and hear the PIANOLA and ORCHESTRELLE.

Ahern was hit hard, while Gannon for five innings did not allow the home team a single hit. Score:

Portland, Me., July 7.—After having practically lost today's game by ragged fielding, Portland made a grand rally and batted out a victory. Jim Smith's work with the stick, five times at bat and five hits, one a double, was a very material factor in the result. Score:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Brockton, 17; Pawtucket, 5.

Pawtucket, July 7.—The Pawtuckets were badly beaten by the Brocktons today. McCafferty started to pitch for the home team, but was pounded so hard that Corridon was substituted. The latter was unable to check the onslaught and the two pitchers had 22 hits with a total of 32 bases made against them. Their support was very poor and neither could have been expected to make a decent showing. Bane, Whitney and Corridon were the only ones who did not make an error. Every one of the Brocktons made at least one hit. Clancy and Holmes four each, and Perkins and Breckenridge three each. Knox and Ferris made home runs. The Brocktons had seven stolen bases. Score:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Brockton.	0	3	3	1	4	0	1	5	0	17
Pawtucket.	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	3—	5

Hits: Brockton, 22; Pawtucket, 7. Errors: Brockton, 1; Pawtucket, 9. Batteries: Everson and Holmes; McCafferty, Corridon and Whitney.

Notes.

Noyes, who has been released by Pawtucket, has been signed for Taunton and will play second base. Stonch will join the Pawtuckets today.

"Newport is figuring in some of the greatest games ever played by a New England League Club." [Boston Herald.

Taunton is playing very plucky ball, and deserves credit for its showing.

"Gilbert is doing some tall hitting for the Newports." [Boston Herald.

"Foley of Newport has pitched in seven straight victories and four straight shutouts, with less than five hits to a game. He has wonderful command of the ball. It might pay Manager Soley of the Bostons to look after perhaps the finest pitcher seen in New England for years." [Boston Globe.

The batting averages of the Brockton team are as follows: Everson .375, Breckenridge .328, Clancy .310, Hay .308, Hawke .295, Gauley .290, Perkins .276, Knox .275, Bernard .216, Shay .212, Holmes .151.

The batting averages of the Manchester players up to Monday were as follows: Carney .351, Kelley .348, Lake .323, Curran .295, Hickey .290, Russell .281, Regan .280, Murphy .275, Fitzmaurice .248, Kennedy .176, Morrissey .171.

"Manager Whiting's colts succeed in playing all kinds of ball except winning ball, whenever an exceptionally big crowd gathers to watch their performances." [Pawtucket Times. The Times man should have been at Freebody Park Tuesday afternoon. There was no fault to find with the playing of the Pawtuckets that day. Even Pawtucket people were satisfied.

The Boston papers today place Newport in third place, with 26 games won and 21 lost. This is an error. Newport is still in fourth place, with 26 games won and 22 lost. The margin between Newport and Manchester is very small, and in fact with the exception of the handicap given Portland by the quarry-like character of the place it calls a fair ball park the clubs would now be up and tuck. It is evident that the grounds and rocks at home give Portland an advantage that the other clubs find it difficult to overcome.

Newport up to today has played 21 games away from home, winning 9 and losing 15, and 21 games at home, winning 17 and losing 4. The standing with the various teams now in the league is as follows: Pawtucket, 4 won 6 lost; Taunton, 6 won 5 lost; Brockton, 5 won 3 lost; Manchester, 3 won 5 lost; Portland, 3 won 3 lost. Five games were won and none lost with the two defunct teams of the league.

Yesterday Brockton apparently took revenge on Pawtucket for the shut-out received here the day previous, making enough hits and runs to win several games. The Pawtuckets seem to have exhausted themselves in that 1-0 game Tuesday, for they have done little since. The team promises to take a brace soon.

A STREET RAILWAY GUIDE.

Within the past year the development of electric railways in Massachusetts has been remarkable, lines now running from Nashua, N. H., on the north, to Newport, on the south; Exeter, N. H., on the east; West Warren, Mass., on the west, the country between these points being covered by a net work of [illegible] miles of [illegible]. Mr. Rob[illegible] in the st[illegible] ness at 131 [illegible] has made a [illegible] for many ye[illegible] fourth edition of a Guide to all the street railways of eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Time-tables of the connecting lines have been included in this year's Guide, while it retains all the features which have made it popular in past years. It contains illustrated descriptions of many trolley rides on the various lines, and many other matters of information to the trolley excursionist. There is also a map of all the street railway lines in eastern Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire and eastern Rhode Island.

RENOVATION OF WHITEHALL.

Some time ago Mrs. A. Livingston Mason, Mrs. Theodore K. Gibbs and Mrs. William Binney secured a lease of "Whitehall," on Berkeley avenue, Middletown, occupied by Dean Berkeley during his stay in Newport many years ago, and have secured sufficient subscriptions to restore the exterior of the building to its former condition. This work is now being done under the direction of Mr. Mason, and it is expected that within a short time the house will be made thoroughly weather-proof and restored in a manner to make it last for many years to come. This is no small undertaking, as the building was in a very bad condition, nearly falling down and rapidly going to decay, and it has been necessary to practically reconstruct it, it being possible, however, to retain very many of the timbers and much of the woodwork. The renovations, when completed, will leave the building in its same old form and containing much of the original material used in its construction.

It is further proposed, when additional funds are secured, to renovate the interior, and the Colonial Dames of Rhode Island will furnish the house with colonial furniture and articles of historic interest.

PROMISE OF A GOOD SHOW FULFILLED.

LaPearl's circus and menagerie, which exhibited here Friday afternoon and evening, made an excellent impression. There was at the afternoon performance an audience which comfortably filled the seating capacity of the tent, but in the evening the seats were overrun and many sat on the grass, bales of hay or whatever they could find from which to get a view of the rings. The menagerie, although small, was a good one, with excellent specimens of rare wild beasts, those attracting the most attention being the very large and the very small elephants, the hippopotamus and the three lion cubs.

The tent exhibit was well worth seeing, the riding, especially by the women; the acrobatic feats, leaping and trapeze performance being all of a high order of merit. There were plenty of clowns to make fun for the children, and everything passed off in a satisfactory manner. This is the first season of the circus in New England, and it will return next year, when undoubtedly the excellent reputation it is making will prove of great benefit to the organization.

THE DEATH OF MRS. DICKINS.

A Washington despatch says: Nothing since the death of Mrs. Tracy, wife of President Harrison's Secretary of the Navy, when her home on Farragut square was burned, has made the same impression on Washington as the shocking event of Friday morning. Mrs. Dickins had lived in Washington so much longer, and had been so much more active in society and its philanthropic work than Mrs. Tracy, that her death meant a great deal more to the city, while the circumstances were quite as dreadful.

Captain Dickins, who served so efficiently in his exacting position throughout the Spanish war, left his wife perfectly well Friday morning, and was startled when, sitting at his desk in the bureau of navigation late in the morning, he received a telephone message from a neighbor stating that his house was on fire and his wife had been hurt. Calling a cab, he got to his residence just as the firemen were bringing out the charred remains of his wife from his wrecked home, and it took all his fortitude to withstand the shock in the presence of the large and observant, though sympathetic, crowd.

Friends took him, with the remains of his wife, to the house of their neighbor, Dr. Dixon of the navy, who could do nothing except assure Captain Dickins that his wife must have died instantly. For the time being Captain Dickins was almost stunned, but when Secretary Long arrived he felt the need of all the sympathy his chief had brought, and of all that was offered through the rest of the day and evening by prominent officials and other friends.

Mrs. Dickins had literary taste and ability, had published stories of travel, and had a remarkably fine collection of art works and bric-a-brac, personally gathered from all over the world. She was a good speaker and a good manager in all kinds of charitable work, and devoted herself last summer to the army and navy relief work of her chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Her personal charity was generous and constant. She was a charming as well as a brilliant woman, handsome, about 40 years old and universally popular.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. C. P. Cassilly of New York is expected at the Barrett cottage today.

—Rear Admiral B. J. Cromwell, commandant of the United States naval station at Havana, has arrived in Newport, where he will spend a short leave with his family at the Terry cottage on Gibbs avenue.

—Captain Crocker, skipper of the Puritan when she defeated the Genesta, has been engaged by Mr. Royal Phelps Carroll for the Navahoe when she races. In ordinary cruising Mr. Carroll has charge of the yacht, Captain Crocker has but recently recovered from a severe attack of sickness.

—The Riverside Trotting Park, near Fall River, formerly the property of the Fall River Agricultural Society, has gone the way of Aquidneck Park and been sold to a single individual. The park saw some good races, but like Aquidneck Park it was too far from the car lines to be popular with the general public.
